OVERVIEW

Nearly half of the John Rewald Papers relate to the art historian's work on Paul Cézanne. They include materials Rewald and his colleagues created and accumulated during Rewald's work on his two major catalogue raisonné projects: The Paintings of Paul Cézanne: A Catalogue Raisonné written in collaboration with Walter Feilchenfeldt and Jayne Warman, published posthumously in 1996, and the earlier Paul Cézanne: The Watercolors: A Catalogue Raisonné, which was written with Adrien Chapis and published in 1983. Files used for production of the catalogues, related correspondence, and files on works of art reputed to be by Cézanne, but which Rewald rejected for the catalogues are included. The Rewald papers also include materials that he wrote or acquired relating to Cézanne's work and its critical reception or that relate to other projects associated with the artist.

Other files relate to Rewald's scholarly work on art and artists other than Cézanne, including research materials associated with his publication The History of Impressionism and Post-Impressionism: From Van Gogh to Gauguin (1946). Although significant and interesting materials are included in the files, they provide only incomplete documentation of Rewald's scholarly work. A significant body of possibly related materials remains under seal until 2044 in the Rewald Papers in the Archives of American Art. [For additional information see Related Materials below.]

ADMINISTRATIVE INFORMATION

Access/Use Information	The John Rewald Papers are not governed by specific restrictions; however, general guidelines for access to records in the Gallery Archives apply.
Preferred Citation	John Rewald Papers, National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., Gallery Archives
Language	The majority of the documents are in English. Some are in French and German.
Copyright	The National Gallery of Art does not own copyright in the materials.
Acquisition Information	John Rewald sold these materials to the National Gallery of Art together with his library in 1986. By agreement, Rewald was permitted to keep the materials in his possession during his lifetime. Following his death in 1994, approximately 18 oversize boxes containing Rewald papers were transferred to the National Gallery of Art. These files were transferred to the Gallery Archives in 2000. Jayne Warman transferred approximately 20 cubic feet of research and publication files for The Paintings of Paul Cézanne: A Catalogue Raisonné to the Gallery Archives in 1998 following completion of the publication project.
Processing Information	Library staff prepared a preliminary survey of the materials. Betsy Coman, Assistant Curator of French paintings, analyzed them further and, together with Ruth Philbrick, Curator of Photographic Archives, segregated photograph files for the Photographic Archives. In the Gallery Archives, Jorgelina Orfila organized the files and prepared the database to historical images. She also obtained copies of documents interleaved with Rewald library books and marked and integrated the copies in the historical files as appropriate. Anne Ritchie coordinated preservation, labeling, and storage.

ADDITIONAL DESCRIPTIVE INFORMATION

Related Materials

Plates of Cézanne works from the catalogue raisonné of paintings, other photographs of works of art (except those associated with research materials), and Cézanne site photographs are in the holdings of National Gallery of Art Library Image Collections (formerly the Photo Archives).

John Rewald's library of monographs, periodicals, exhibition and sales catalogues numbering almost 15,000 volumes has been incorporated in the holdings of the National Gallery of Art Library. An annotated bibliography is available. Catalogue records include item-specific information.

An illustrated database to historical photographs of people and places in the Rewald Papers in the Gallery Archives and to the Cézanne site photographs in the Library Image Collections is available in the Gallery Archives.

John Rewald donated approximately 50 cubic feet of papers to the Archives of American Art, Smithsonian Institution. These are closed until 2044. Contact the Archives of American Art for further information.

Subgroup 43A Cézanne Materials

John Rewald gathered information concerning Paul Cézanne during more than six decades of scholarly work, from 1933 until his death in 1994. He had first become interested in Lionel Venturi's catalogue of the works of Paul Cézanne when it was published in 1936. Upon Venturi's death in 1960, Rewald inherited Venturi's project photographs of Cézanne works of art together with the task of completing an updated catalogue raisonné. Advised by a small committee of experts, he divided the task into two parts, publishing first a catalogue of Cézanne watercolors in 1983, which he authored with Adrien Chapuis. The catalogue raisonné of Cézanne's paintings, written in collaboration with Walter Feilchenfeldt and Jayne Warman, was published posthumously in 1996.

Rewald also was involved in a number of other exhibition and publishing projects relating to Cézanne's work and was consulted frequently about Cézanne's works. He maintained a broad correspondence with scholars, dealers, and members of the public concerning paintings, drawings, and watercolors thought to be by Cézanne but which Rewald considered to be "fakes" and did not include in the catalogues raisonnés. Generally these represent requests for Rewald's opinion concerning a work of art, and can include materials sent to him at different times by different interested parties. It should be noted that although in principle the files are organized by media and thereunder by subject, sometimes even the media or subject of the work can be difficult to determine. Furthermore, a single document may relate to multiple works of art. For this reason, the files must be examined as a whole for certainty concerning whether information is available on any particular work of art. Letters found without photographs can be found in folder 36-2, Correspondence re. fakes. Photographs found in this context without supporting information can be found in folder 36-13, Photographs without correspondence. Materials relating to fakes that stem from Venturi's work, including photographs, can be found in folders 37-5 and 37-6.

Rewald also gathered references and other materials on Cézanne and made repeated efforts to organize sources relating to the artist's work. Many of these materials, including photographs and card files, are included among these papers.

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

43A1 The Paintings of Paul Cézanne: A Catalogue Raisonné

43A1.1 Cézanne Paintings Numbered Entry Files [Boxes 1 - 18]

The first 18 boxes of the Rewald papers consist of numbered files arranged in order by catalogue entry corresponding to the catalogue raisonné to Cézanne's paintings. The files include documentation for each of the 954 paintings in the catalogue raisonné. Each file includes edited text for the catalogue entry and, depending on the work, supporting materials including notes, correspondence, photographs (except for catalogue plates, which are in the National Gallery of Art Library Image Collections), and other related information. Files range from sparse to extensive depending on the work.

The front page of each file includes several catalogue numbers, some on stickers, often differentiated by color. These numbers reflect the changing order of the entries as the catalogue evolved. Many of the numbers were used in correspondence, notes and other research materials and thus are important reference points for tracking these discussions. The final catalogue numbers (in orange) sometimes obscure the earlier (green and red) numbers. The final order of the files follows that of the published catalogue raisonné.

Included is the exchange of correspondence amongst Rewald's committee of experts, filed with related catalogue entry files. Often letters include references to more than one painting.

43A1.2 Cézanne Paintings Catalogue Production Files [Box 19]

These three folders document the history of the paintings catalogue raisonné publication project. A 1959 letter states the intention of the New York Graphic Society to publish a revised edition of the 1936 Venturi Cézanne catalogue raisonné. Other items document Rewald's initial interest in undertaking this work.

43A1.3 Museum Responses to Questions, c. 1989-1991 [Box 20]

In 1989, Rewald and his colleagues sent museums a print-out of the catalogue provenance for Cézanne works that they owned. The folders contain the museums' responses and corrections, sometimes with new information.

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

43A2 Paul Cézanne, The Watercolors: A Catalogue Raisonné

43A2.1 Cézanne Watercolors Numbered Entry Files [Boxes 21 - 28]

These consist of numbered files corresponding to each entry in the catalogue raisonné to watercolors. A brief typewritten text, sometimes in several versions, is usually included for each object. In addition to published catalogue entries, many of the files include supplemental documents, especially correspondence between Rewald and his collaborator Adrien Chappuis. Comments from the editor, Betty Childs, also are included. The file for catalogue number 622 is missing.

43A2.2 Cézanne Watercolors Catalogue Production Files [Box 28]

These two folders relate to the editing and publication of the catalogue raisonné.

43A3 Work on Cézanne “Fakes” (Rejected Attributions)

Rewald’s files on “fakes” or rejected attributions are organized by media and thereunder by subject following Rewald’s system. It should be noted, however, that sometimes the media or subject matter of the work in question is not obvious, and thus the placement of documentation may be uncertain. Furthermore, a single document may relate to multiple works of art. For this reason, the files must be examined as a whole for certainty concerning whether information on any particular work of art is included.

43A3.1 Cézanne Paintings Fakes Files [Boxes 29 - 33]

Since the works of art generally lack consistent titles or other definitive identification, materials are organized first by general image type (Landscapes, Portraits and Figures, and Still-lives) and within each image type by narrower categories so that similar works are together: for example, “Houses and towns in a landscape.” Materials relating to ten works of art are in each folder unless otherwise noted.

43A3.2 Cézanne Watercolors Fakes Files [Boxes 34 - 35]

Rejected attributions of Cézanne watercolors fall into three categories: Landscapes [six folders], Nature Morte [three folders] and Bathers, mythological and other subjects [two folders]. Materials relating to ten works of art are in each folder unless otherwise noted.

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

43A3.3 Cézanne Drawings Fakes Files [Box 35]

Rejected attributions of Cézanne drawings are divided by subject among four folders. Materials relating to ten works of art are in each folder unless otherwise noted.

43A3.4 Cézanne Fakes Subject Files [Boxes 36 - 37]

General correspondence concerning fakes, documents concerning works for which photographs are not available and photographs of otherwise undocumented items, reference materials and other materials which cannot otherwise be classified are located in these subject files. The files are organized alphabetically by assigned subject. Venturi photographs of fakes are included here.

43A4 Other Cézanne Projects

43A4.1 Aix-en-Provence Projects Files [Box 38]

Seven folders concern Rewald's interest in Aix-en-Provence, including the creation of the Cézanne Memorial and l'atelier Cézanne. Articles and general information on Aix also are included.

43A4.2 Rewald's Writings on Cézanne [Box 38]

Six folders contain correspondence, background information and research materials associated with Rewald's publications of Cézanne letters, Cézanne and his father, Cézanne and Guillaumin, and Achille Empereire.

43A4.3 Cézanne Exhibition Projects Files [Boxes 39 - 40]

Folders relating to the exhibitions Cézanne, The Early Years 1859-1872, a Cézanne exhibition to be held in Japan, and Cézanne: The Late Work are included. The files primarily include correspondence, newspaper clippings, articles and catalogue entries, arranged by exhibition and subject.

43A4.4 Grant Application Materials 1981 – 1986 [Box 40]

Between 1981 and 1986, Rewald applied for several NEH grants, especially for completion of the Cézanne catalogue raisonné. Grant paperwork is included here. This is a good source for Rewald biographical and bibliographical information.

43A4.5 Unpublished Catalogue Files in French [Box 41]

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

Four folders contain catalogue entries and page proofs, in French, for an unpublished Cézanne catalogue.

43A4.6 General Cézanne Subject Correspondence [Boxes 42 - 43]

This series contains Rewald's Cézanne-related correspondence that is not associated with a particular project and generally does not concern specific areas of research..

43A5 Cézanne Source Materials

Organized research materials on Cézanne that Rewald systematically compiled at various times in his career have been consolidated in these series. Included are Rewald's notes, copies of archival documents, excerpts from exhibition catalogues, journals and other articles, and photographs. The materials primarily concern collectors, dealers, and exhibitions.

43A5.1 Cézanne and America Research Files [Boxes 44 - 46]

These files reflect Rewald's interest in the growth of Cézanne collections in America. In 1975 he worked on an article for the Bulletin of the Metropolitan Museum of Art referred to as "Cézanne's Conquest of America" or "How Cézanne Came to America." In 1979, he chose "Cézanne and America" as his topic for the Andrew W. Mellon Lectures in the Fine Arts presented at the National Gallery of Art. The research material also was used in the catalogue raisonné of Cézanne paintings. Two folders relating to the proposed article to be titled "Cézanne's Conquest" are followed by a group of chronologically-organized sources for the article. Additional materials follow arranged alphabetically by subject.

43A5.2 Cézanne Collections, Collectors, and Dealers Files [Boxes 47 - 48]

These files result from Rewald's attempts to document the ownership of Cézanne works over time.

43A5.3 Cézanne Concordances and Chronologies [Box 49]

This series consists of four folders with concordances to catalogues of Cézanne's work, especially between Venturi's 1936 work and other catalogues. Annotated copies of Georges Rivière's 1923 chronology to Cézanne's works also are included.

43A5.4 Catalogues of Cézanne Exhibitions [Box 49]

These six folders include copies of catalogues to exhibitions of Cézanne's work from 1903 to 1921 and related correspondence.

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

43A5.5 Cézanne Subject Research Files [Boxes 50 - 51]

These subject files include copies of Cézanne letters and other archival materials accumulated during Rewald's early research on the artist as well as other documents relating to Cézanne.

43A5.6 Publications on Cézanne and His Collectors by Year [Boxes 52 - 53]

43A5.7 Publications on Cézanne and His Collectors by Author or Title [Box 53]

Rewald gathered published materials on Cézanne from a variety of sources. Following Rewald's system, small items are arranged chronologically in series 43A5.6. More noteworthy materials are in individual folders arranged alphabetically by author or title in series 43A5.7.

43A5.8 Ambroise Vollard Research Files [Boxes 54 - 55]

These files relating to the dealer Ambroise Vollard include copies of stock books and shipping receipts. Rewald acquired these copies at various times in his career. Copies of account books and other documents are arranged chronologically by document type. Other files are arranged alphabetically by Rewald file title. These documents helped Rewald establish the authenticity and provenance of the works of art that passed through the Vollard gallery.

43A5.9 Cézanne Watercolors Research Files [Box 56]

These files include correspondence, publications, and copies of documents relating to Cézanne watercolors.

43A5.10 Cézanne Photographs - Prints [Boxes 57 - 58]

These photographs consist of images of the artist and other individuals, documents, and exhibitions within the context of Rewald's scholarly work on Cézanne.

43A5.11 Cézanne Notecards [Box 59]

These card files include many cards written in German, most probably used by Rewald for his dissertation. The original order and meaning of some of the note cards has been lost.

Subgroup 43B Other Artists Materials

In addition to his work on Cézanne, early in his career Rewald began to collect materials on other, primarily French, artists, including Gauguin, Maillol, Seurat, Bonnard, Pissarro. The files include a wide variety of materials that Rewald created or accumulated as part of his research on these and other Impressionist and Post-Impressionist artists. The materials range in date from the time of Rewald's earliest study to the months shortly before his death. Although these files touch in some way on almost every area of Rewald's scholarly interests, they are extremely uneven and evidently incomplete. Some of the materials, especially those associated with Rewald's studies before coming to the United States in 1941, were highly disorganized when they arrived in the archives. Their order has now been reconstructed insofar as possible. Because Rewald largely organized his work by subject, these files generally follow that organization.

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

Rewald once commented that he had stopped writing in German in 1933 and had switched first to French and, after his move to America, to English. This evolution is reflected in the papers and helps to date various documents.

43B1 Other Artists Project Files [Boxes 60 - 63]

*These folders consist of research files and other papers accumulated during work on various publications including History of Impressionism, Post-Impressionism – From Van Gogh to Gauguin, Studies in Impressionism, and other lectures and articles. A scrapbook with Rewald's shorter writings is in Box 62. Included also are files and installation photographs relating to an exhibition of Les Fauves.*

43B2 Other Artists Expert Opinion Files [Boxes 63 - 64]

These files consist of correspondence relating to Rewald's evaluation of works by various artists, arranged by artist's name. Included within some of the artist folders are photographs of works in a Hotel Drouot sale of 1959, with Rewald's comments.

43B3 Other Artists Source Materials

These series include Rewald's notes and copies of primary documents in his areas of research interest, gathered from various sources throughout his career.

43B3.1 19th Century Art Research Notebooks [Boxes 65 - 66]

These notebooks include Rewald's research notes on art-related subjects of the years 1855 to 1900. He seems to have compiled them during the 1940s, soon after his arrival in the United States.

43B3.2 Art and Artists Subject Files [Boxes 67 - 80]

Some of the folders include limited documentation of relatively little known artists. Other groups of documents relate to Frédéric Bazille, Pierre Bonnard, Henri Cross and Maximilien Luce, Edgar Degas, Félix Fénéon, Paul Gauguin, Camille Pissarro and Georges Seurat, Paul Signac and Vincent Van Gogh. Certain files also concern more general subjects such as Impressionism and Post-Impressionism. The files include copies of letters written by artists, correspondence, publications, and related documents. Some of the artists' letters are gathered in six folders labeled "Artists' Letters."

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

43B3.3 Collected Research Articles [Boxes 81 – 82]

This grouping of research articles is from a variety of sources, arranged alphabetically by subject or author. Articles that Rewald had placed in other files were left in those places.

43B3.4 Art and Artists Photographs - Prints [Boxes 83 - 84]

This series consists mostly of photographs of people and places other than Cézanne together with research material. The images seem to have been taken before World War II. Images of the same places taken following the war can be found among Rewald's slides. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by name or supplied subject.

43B3.5 Art and Artists Photographs - Slides [Boxes 84 - 85]

These slides consist of images taken by Rewald in Europe following World War II when his photography was primarily in the form of slides. Lists from the boxes in which the slide collection was found and a list of lecture slides are in the folder preceding the slides. The slides are arranged alphabetically by name or supplied subject.

43B3.6 The Artists I Knew Lecture Slides [Boxes 86 - 88]

These slides include photographs of sites associated with 19th century artists, as well as images of artists and dealers Rewald interviewed, including portraits, views of studios and artists' homes. The quality of the slides varies considerably. They are arranged alphabetically by artist name.

43B3.7 Art and Artists - Lantern Slides [Boxes 89 - 91]

Rewald apparently used these lantern slides for early lectures. Most are images of works of art. They are arranged alphabetically by subject.

43B3.8 Pissarro and His Family - Negatives [Box 92]

Included in this group are glass plate copy negatives of 14 photographs of Pissarro and his family. Based on documents in the files, at least one of the images was given to Rewald by Lucien Pissarro. Other negatives are of works of art including a drawing of Pissarro by Maximilien Luce, a drawing of Félix Fénéon by Paul Signac, and a pastel by Pissarro. Preservation prints of the negatives can be found in folder 84-6 Copy negatives have been separated and are in boxes 123 and 124.

43B3.9 Works of Art, Musical Scores, and Other Negatives [Boxes 93 - 94]

Among these negatives are images whose significance is unexplained (copies of music parts, for example) as well as images of works of art by various artists that relate to Rewald's research interests during the 1930s. Negatives of works of art are in Box 93. Negatives of documents are in Box 94.

43B3.10 Art and Artists Notecards [Boxes 96 - 99]

These files concern various subjects that interested Rewald at different times during his career, and generally include information on artists, paintings, publications or exhibitions. The C.(amille) P.(issarro) file consists primarily of quotations from Pissarro's letters. The original sequence of the cards has been restored to the greatest extent possible.

Subgroup 43C John Rewald Life

Included among materials transferred to the National Gallery following Rewald's death was a significant group of personal documents. Except for desk diaries, the papers generally were without any established order and often are undated.

43C1 Young Rewald Subject Files [Box 100]

These documents relate to Rewald's early life in Germany. Some are written in German.

43C2 Personal Information Files 1958 – 1994 [Boxes 100 - 101]

These files relate to various aspects of Rewald's life from about 1958 to shortly before his death. Photographs of Rewald with his family and friends are included.

43C3 Desk Diaries 1952 – 1983 [Boxes 102 - 105]

Rewald recorded information on his life and travels in the diaries. Beginning in 1965, the diaries include financial information. Beginning in 1969, they include tax data.

43C4 Rewald's Art Collection Scrapbooks [Boxes 106 - 107]

These two scrapbooks include information on Rewald's art collection.

Subgroup 43D Paul Mellon Collection

John Rewald became art advisor to Paul Mellon in 1966 and also consulted concerning the collection of his sister Ailsa Mellon Bruce. The documents included here relate to exhibitions and various other services and advice that Rewald provided concerning these collections. Files on individual works of art also are included.

JOHN REWALD PAPERS

43D1 Correspondence and Related Materials [Boxes 108 - 109]

These files are arranged alphabetically by subject.

43D2 Mellon Collection Art Files

43D2.1 Mellon Collection Drawings Files [Boxes 110 - 112]

43D2.2 Mellon Collection Paintings Files [Boxes 113 - 116]

These files are arranged alphabetically by artist name.

43D2.3 Mellon Collection Photographs - Prints [Boxes 117 - 120]

The photographs are arranged in four groups: Mellon, Mellon Drawings, Mellon Oil Paintings and Mellon Sculpture. Within each group, arrangement is alphabetical by artist name.

43D2.4 Mellon Collection “Addendum” Files [Box 121]

Three folders apparently hold information about works Mellon purchased between about 1975 and 1983, which Rewald maintained separately from other files.

Subgroup 43E Other Formats
